Creative Writing Festival

The High School Creative Writing Festival at University of Wisconsin-Whitewater will be on: Wednesday, November 14 this year. Stoughton students have consistently attended and submitted work to this festival and have won some categories over the past 10 years. Each year approximately 750 students and teachers participate in the festival featuring a day of stimulating exposure to the writing of their peers and the chance to hear their work discussed and evaluated by professional writers in a college setting. This year Charles Monroe-Kane of NPR and winner of a Peabody Award for his work there will be the Keynote Speaker.

Students should begin working on their submissions now to prepare them for the October 22, 2018, deadline. Students submitting a manuscript and attending workshops have a $30.00 attendance fee. Students who will just attend workshops have a $25.00 attendance fee. For more information please use the following link UW-Whitewater Creative Writing Festival or contact Mrs. Monthie with questions at jen.monthie@stoughton.k12.wi.us.
