SOCIAL EMOTIONAL LEARNING SCHOOL CONNECTION

We are rolling right through our Skills for Learning during our Second Step lessons!

In the past two weeks our kindergarten, first, and second-grade students focused on what it looks and sounds like to be assertive, which is the most effective way to communicate what you need or want. Students learned that they need to stand up tall, look the person in the eye, and use a calm, firm, confident voice. Voice volume is important and the students learn they cannot be too loud or too quiet. Students also talked about how they need to use respectful words.

Our third-grade students started talking about the importance of planning. They made 3 step plans to help a student accomplish his goals and discussed the many times during their days that planning helps them be more successful.

Fourth-grade students discussed respecting similarities and differences and feel the world would be a boring place if we were all the same. Students discussed how they can be friends even if they like different things.

Predicting feelings was the focus of our fifth-grade students. Fifth graders talked about how they should use empathy to predict how others might feel about their words or actions, and act in a way that makes others feel good.
